3. Their capabilities at the present time, which appear to be related to our interests, are in the areas of advanced software technology, information systems, and systems analysis, design and integration. They spoke of a [redacted] in their organization who has a leading capability in advanced software development, particularly for automatically correlating data from various sources without requiring that the data be entered in a common language form.

4. They also mentioned a [redacted] of their organization, who is performing initial development work in the area of digital image restoration. It is suggested that it may be beneficial for us to make the unclassified aspects of the [redacted] work available to these people on the same basis that we did for IBM. Their information systems capability is staffed with 300-300 people and budgeted at [redacted] a year.
